Hickman College Library.

The following letter was received by Dr. Davidson this week, and is explanatory:

S. E. Davidson,
Hickman School Board,
Hickman, Ky.

Dear Sir:

I enclosed find bill of lading of the books comprising the "Official Records of the Union and Confederate Armies." Their great historic value will be appreciated when the bills at the end of each volume is read. They, no doubt, contain much of interest to civilians as well as to soldiers.

For instance, on page 663, Vol. VII, Series II, is a letter which shows the magnanimity of our great hero, Gen. Forrest, wherein he offered to parole a number of U. S. prisoners of war in his possession for an equal number of C. S. prisoners of equal rank, and further stated that if Maj. Washburn did not have an equal number he would parole the remainder "in the name of humanity to the prisoners." He thus appears in as fair a light as any hero of any age, being certainly a modern Bayard "without fear and without reproach."

It is a distinction to have served under such a general. The title of the books, however, "War of the Rebellion," I do not like as it is a misnomer. "Civil War" would be better. Some printed labels could be pasted over the former title. The books, though will be a treasure sometime.

Included with them, you will find two volumes of famous college songs, a book of the Fair and several books of views at the St. Louis World's Fair and also a very valuable "Cyclopedia of the Home and Farm" which contains a vast amount of practical information for boys and girls, men and women.

In this volume can be found Washington's famous 100 rules for conduct in life prepared by him at the age of thirteen, Lord Beauchamp's Alphabet of Etiquette and the Farmer's Alphabet in rhymes. It is indeed a "multum in parvo." There are plans for farm houses and buildings of every description, directions for sowing, planting and reaping, and girls can learn how to prepare anything from a sherbet or a cake to a roast pig, an English plum pudding or a Westphalia Ham a l'Estate. If, as a great educator said, "true aim of education is to teach boys and girls that which they will need when they grow up," be correct, and I think it is, then this book will become one of the most useful volumes in your library and prove itself a veritable mine of practical knowledge, and in time, perhaps, when your Honorable School Board "visits the school," which is, no doubt, often, you may hear essays on the best ways to prepare "Virginia Fried Chicken," "Corn Pudding," or the "Adaptation of Soil to Crops" on "Grafting and Budding," or how to build a modern farm house or ventilated Granary.

I may send you another book or so at a future date and I hope that every one who ever attended the Hickman College will give at least one selected volume to the library of Hickman College, or perhaps several might write and send one reference volume or set of books. If this were done in a short time Hickman could boast the finest library in Jackson's Purchase or in the Commonwealth, and why not? It is a little thing they can do to testify their appreciation of benefits had and received.

A list of needed books might be published every year in the Courier just before school begins and no doubt there would be a hearty response.

The library should be regarded as a public institution of value to the whole community and it must never be forgotten that "an investment in knowledge always pays the largest dividends."

In closing will say that I hope the books will be of some value to the teachers and pupils of Hickman College in the years to come.

Yours respectfully,
S. L. ISBELL.

Venice.

In my dreams I long for Venice
And the little home gardens
For the rays of golden sun
On a snow-white wall at Pisa!
For the life of dreamy waters
That are rocked by fairy winds,
At a mermaid's look from golden sea
In the sunset glow beyond!
In the dusk is music ring'd,
And the ghosts of Tasso's day
Are abroad in twilight's purple mist
To dispel themselves at play!
Twas a thousand years in building
Then the same good time to days,
And all Venice, so modest lies
Like a breeze-shed, fragrant rose!
And 'tis thus I dream of Venice
In my own romantic way,
Will no girl I haven't been there yet!
But I hope to go some day!

The alleged "joists" on the Tennessee side of Fulton are to be broken up according to the action taken by the Deputy Sheriff Jesse Walker of that place. "Inc" and "Wiv" are the drunks which are being sold, and two bottles of each have been secured and are to be analyzed.

Are you going to build that grand old sidewalk?

The Henderson papers say the Cumberland Telephone Co. has put a toll charge of 10 cents to county towns in Henderson county, besides abolishing the night and Sunday rates. They should come over and get Hickman's "big stick."

It is not the site of a town but its character that makes it a desirable place to live in. A live, prosperous town is a desirable one to live in, and a town may prosper and yet be small. Every citizen in a town should be interested in its prosperity. One of the best ways to help a town is to speak well of it. It is true patriotism to stand by your own town and interests that affects the town should affect every citizen.

The better some people are the more violent the reaction.

The fine and delicate art of getting oneself noticed has at last reached its zenith. Not illogically, it has soared through by balcon. In vain do we build grand houses. The houses stand still, and few see them. In vain do we race up and down the sea coast in 1,200 ton ocean going steam yachts. The vast majority of our compatriots live inland and are thus denied the spectacle of our felicity. In vain do we go snoring across the continent in motor cars. At best the automobile cuts a swath of publicity some 200 feet wide or less. But the balloon—your gods, what a device! Seven counties gap at you at once, and as you course blithely across the empyrean new counties come hourly within your zone of influence.

Talk is cheap if you get it from a gossip.

George Buck Weds.

The public and the friends generally of our fellow-townman, George Buck, were not a little surprised Monday morning to learn that he and Miss Clara Shelby, of near this city, had tied themselves to Union City Sunday in his automobile and were quietly made man and wife. They returned to Hickman that night, arriving about nine o'clock.

Not even her parents knew of their intentions, and were not apprised of the wedding until they returned home—two lives made one.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Shelby, who resides in the lower bottoms, several miles below Hickman, and is a beautiful young lady.

Mr. Buck is known by almost everyone in the county, and all who know him, know him for his honest and industrious business career of these many years in Hickman. He is Hickman's leading machinist and gasoline engine builder.

The Courier heartily wishes them both a life brim full of happiness and prosperity.

Hors de Combat.

On account of being compelled to move—back, stool and barrel, and in the absence of our society editor, J. C. Sexton—into a place where we haven't room to cut a cat, the Courier asks it's readers to kindly overlook the paper's short-comings this and next week. We were not forced to move because we could not pay our rent—though we would if all our subscription list was like a few whose names we will not call—but our building is being repaired, redressed, plastered, etc., which made it necessary for us to vacate. The genial and popular Atty. B. T. Davis has become wrought up to such a pitch in the matter of civic pride that he has decided to break up the Davis Block and make it a credit to this part of the city.

We might add that our job department looks like a Chinese map since the moving hurricane struck it and we will be unable to do any job work before the last of next week.

Your patient forbearance during our tear-up will be greatly appreciated, and we think we will be in a position to give you a better paper when we get into our new quarters.

The new plant at the Mengel Factory is nearing completion, and by September first will be in operation. We are told by Manager Walker that at that time the working capacity of the Hickman plant will be doubled, or practically so, and that at least 1200 men will be employed. The building that is in course of construction is one to replace the mill that burned. However this mill will not increase the working capacity to the full amount, but the veneering plant will also be enlarged and come in for its share of the laborers. Yes, verily, Hickman will have 6,000 population in 1910.

To the old time advertiser the words "strike while the iron is hot" always meant "advertise when the crops are all in and money plentiful." Late advertisement charges are, however, contented that it is better to make the iron hot by striking. The successful merchant creates his own occasions. Instead of waiting for things to turn up, he gets busy and turns them up himself.

If you have a home or piece of property you want to sell come to the Courier Office and we will perhaps be able to interest you. We will sell for you on charge a very small per cent. of the sale price, and if we fail to sell it the advertising will cost you nothing. Investigate if you are not already acquainted with our plan.

Mrs. Young and daughter, Miss Rosebud, left for their home in Paducah, Monday. They have been visiting Mrs. J. T. Dillon.

OLD ENGLISH SHRINE

OF PECULIAR INTEREST TO THE ARCHEOLOGIST.

One of the Earliest Examples of Christianity to Be Found in Britain—Known as St. Piran's Cross.

In various parts of the countryside of England are seen old stone crosses of a long age which in themselves are objects of much interest, for apart from the meaning of their construction, many have histories of their own. Of these early examples of Christianity we show one of exceptional interest to the tourist to England, St. Piran's cross, at Fernanborough, Cornwall. It should be mentioned that the meaning of the "Cornish round headed cross," as they are called, is that the cross signifies "redemption" and the circle "eternity."

The associations of this cross are given around St. Piran, who was born in the sixth century in Ireland and was sent over to Cornwall on a mission. Here, on Perran Sands, he built a chapel which was religiously used for many years by the villagers round about but in the course of time the shifting sands threatened and finally enveloped the little building. However, the good seeds sown by the saint had not been lost, and the cross and the chapel were to be done out of their shrine. Consequently, in the thirteenth century they built another church further inland, across a stream which prevented the sands from shifting.

large fortune. He became a Mam-mood many years ago and virtually a Moor.

His deeds of valor have been numerous and although he has only one eye he is a crack shot with a rifle.

His greatest achievement was when his patron, Sultan M'Al, died of fatigue during a campaign against some turbulent tribes and MacLean concealed the death, carrying the corpse in a gorgeous golden bier.

MacLean then reached the capital, smuggled the body in through a hole in the wall, then met and proclaimed the new sultan. MacLean knew that the news of the death of M'Al would be the signal for a military revolt, which would result in an enemy of his being placed on the throne.

BOAR RUNS IN HARNESS.

Draws Master About Like a Horse in a Specially Designed Gear.

M. Tronget, living at Montreux, France, has perhaps the most curious turn of mind in the world. Some time ago M. Tronget captured a wild boar, with the aid of his keeper in the Tronca forest. This animal he has trained.

At first it was a most difficult matter for M. Tronget to get his boar to run in harness, but by dint of much perseverance and more whipping it was at last brought to docility and obedience. Then a specially designed gear was built for it, and the animal was made to draw his master about just like a horse. The boar is now two years old, and this strange occupation can be seen almost every day at Montreux, where the peasants have become so used to the sight that they no longer notice that it is strange.

The animal eats fresh every day for it in the woods where it was caught.

Dog Gave Life to Save Girl.

Carrie, her faithful spaniel, is dead, but Emilie Schlichting, the five-year-old mistress of the curly haired pet, is safe, so at 38 Cranberry street, Brooklyn, there is rejoicing and sorrow at the same time, says the New York World. For Carrie, who knew more than some humans, saved the life of the child the other afternoon, and gave her own in the evening.

Emilie is the daughter of William G. Schlichting, a wholesale grocer. Every day she and the dog went out for a stroll together, with Carrie on a leash, so Emilie would not get lost. The other day they took their walk as usual, and were crossing Hicks street at Midland, when a truckman suddenly swung his horse toward them.

To those who looked on it seemed that the little girl could not escape for a stroll together, with Carrie on a leash, so Emilie would not get lost. The other day they took their walk as usual, and were crossing Hicks street at Midland, when a truckman suddenly swung his horse toward them.

With a tug at the leash threw her little mistress on her back and she fell sprawling on the pavement out of the way of the horse's hoofs. But the moment it had taken the dog to save the child, the animal lay dead and a hoof felled the dog and a wheel crushed it.

Cat's Tenacity of Life.

An instance of the remarkable vitality possessed by the cat has just been demonstrated at Herbling, near Billingsborough, England. A very fine cross-bred Persian mysteriously disappeared from its home, and sixteen days later was found in an open field, secured in a rabbit trap.

Notwithstanding the animal's long, painful confinement and exposure to the heavy rains, it was still alive. It was, however, reduced to a mere skeleton, and was unable to walk, but under proper treatment it is now recovering. That the cat had been in the trap all the time is beyond question, as otherwise it would have returned home to a kitten which it was suckling at the date of its disappearance.

DECOY HORSES ON SHIPBOARD.

Mirror Helps to Make Process of Embarkation Easy.

Circus horses do much traveling from place to place, and sometimes have to be transported by ship. To embark them on their way, they may have to be slung on board by means of a hoisting apparatus. When possible, however, they are simply walked up a gangway.

In some instances the horse is nervous of going on board. Maybe not one horse of a whole string will face doing so. The manager of one traveling circus has ingeniously solved the difficulty.

A big, strong framed mirror—one of the circus "properties"—mounted on wheels, is placed on deck, and at the end of the gangway.

The horse is led to a position facing the mirror, he thinks there is a horse already on board, and so feels no hesitation in "joining it." One by one the remaining horses follow.

SILK THREAD IN NEST.

Orbit Material Made Trouble for Home-Building Robins.

"It is astonishing," says a bird lover, "where and how birds manage to find or steal the variety of materials they use in building their nests."

Two robins are now building in a tree close to my window, and besides twigs, blades of dried grass, horse hairs, and other things that might be expected, one of them brought a skein of blue silk thread. It had been stolen from somewhere, and was evidently regarded by both the robins as a very valuable acquisition, for after bringing it to the nest there was a long, animated discussion as to what ought to be done with it. It would not do to use it on the outside, for its color was so bright that it would attract attention to the nest. They decided to talk about it, the silk was finally disposed of by twining it round and round on the inside. There it became a sort of a trap for the male bird, leaving the nest, found it tangled with his claws, and pulled it nearly all out, being roundly scolded for his stupidity.

It took hours to put it all back again and prevent a recurrence of a similar accident, but things were finally adjusted to the satisfaction of both birds, and though I could not see, I think they covered up the silk with bits of paper, for I saw them carrying twigs and newspaper and wrapping them away inside."

CANTEN AS LIFE BUOY.

As Uncle Sam's Boys in Blue Are Taught to Use It.

A novel use of the canten is to employ it as a life buoy or as an aid in learning to swim. The accompanying sketch shows the position of the canten as it should be used. Whether there is one canten or two, the idea is practically the same. Snap the canten strap to the belt buckle and fasten the cantens upon the breast so that they cannot slip out of place, says the Journal of the American Canteen Association. This may be accomplished by fastening a string or handkerchief to the side rings of the cantens, and then passing it around the neck. For still greater security, pass a cord around the body and fasten it to the outside rings.

Paving Streets with Gold Ore.

West Denver is soon to boast of having paved the only streets on this earthly globe paved with gold. While workmen of the city are unloading disintegrating granite shipped from South park for the surfacing of the district between south Eleventh and Last streets, they found rock which contained what looked to be free gold. Samples were turned over to experts, who pronounced that to the naked eye it was unmistakably gold ore. This opinion was strengthened by the fact of material having been secured in South park. This district was recently examined by mining engineers representing the chamber of commerce, who reported that the district was an unexplored region of wealth. Mayor Speer has some samples of the rock which he intends to have tested by a chemist. In the meantime, the presumably valuable material will be placed on the streets unless so much ore is found by the assayer to warrant its being placed in the city treasury. SURGEON'S ERROR LEADS TO ALTAR.

MASSACHUSETTS GIRL SUFFERED AFTER OPERATION IN BOSTON HOSPITAL.

SPONGE WAS LEFT IN BODY

Convalescence Led to Meeting with Young Man That Resulted in a Wedding—Case Is Most Unusual.

Boston.—A surgeon's sponge left in the body of Miss Flora M. Pard, a pretty French girl, after an operation in a Boston hospital has been the source of all kinds of trouble to that young lady, but has finally resulted in her marriage to Louis Rodriquez in Lynn. The case is one of the most unusual ever brought to the attention of the doctors, and it didn't result in her death instead of bringing about her marriage, is regarded as a miracle.

Miss Pard, as she was before her marriage, is the daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Pard, of Bass Point, Nahant, and is well known among the French families of that town and Lynn. She is 21 years old, of good figure and very prepossessing. Some months ago her health began to fail and it was decided that she had a tumor, and that an operation would be necessary to save her life. She went to a Boston hospital, where she was operated on by one of the best surgeons connected with that institution.

After she returned to her home, however, her condition became worse instead of better, and in a short time she was removed to the Lynn hospital. Here Drs. W. E. Little and I. H. Chiodine performed four operations on the girl in hopes of getting at the cause of her trouble. The first three seemed to do no good, and the doctors decided that they had not gone deep enough. During the fourth they made a very exhaustive examination, probing deep, and the result was the discovery of the surgeon's sponge sewed up at the bottom of the original incision.

When the doctors found this their astonishment knew no bounds, and at that time they could hardly believe their eyes. They decided that it should be kept secret, but Miss Pard was composed out of the effects of the ether, and before the doctors supposed she had recovered consciousness she heard them talking about it. Finally the doctors admitted to the young lady that she had a sponge in her body. She was actually found the sponge within her. There is little doubt that this was the cause of her illness and her intensely feverish condition directly after the first operation.

When finally the sponge had been removed the girl's condition began to improve, but the many operations left her in very weak condition and she was sent to stay with relatives in Berlin, N. H., in order that she might recuperate. It was during her sojourn there that she met Louis Rodriquez of that town. Rodriquez greatly sympathized with the girl and devoted much of his time to taking her on carriage drives and long walks so that she could regain her health. As her condition rapidly improved he continued his attentions and finally became her accepted suitor.

On the day set for Miss Pard to return to her mother's home in Nahant, Rodriquez decided to return with her. They were married by Prior Parent of the French church in Lynn. They will live for a time in Nahant.

Miss Pard had at one time contemplated the possibility of marrying the surgeon because of the trouble caused by her, but everything has now turned out so well she has decided to drop it. She continues to enjoy good health, and her sister has stated that she would do no more about it. The doctors in the Boston hospital had treated her kindly during her stay there, the sister said, and leaving the sponge in the wound had been doubly due to their overanxiety to perform the operation as quickly as possible. They had done their best to save her life, and now that all had ended well she would do nothing about the matter.

You Can't Depend Absolutely Upon Your Memory

* The chances are that four or five months after you pay a bill, you forget about it. * Suppose that same bill should be presented to you—possibly you could remember about it; but nine out of every dozen bills you pay, you forget about in six months. Some you could not recall after six weeks. Pay all bills by check,—file your checks. Six years afterward you can turn to the checks, if necessary, and produce indisputable evidence for every bill paid. * We will be pleased to explain other advantages of the checking account to you

HOW ABOUT THE BOY?
 Your Boy?

St. Vincent's College

 Write for a catalogue.

Did you ever realize that nothing on earth can smile but a human being. Gems may flash reflected light, but what is a diamond flash? A face that cannot smile is like a bud that cannot blossom, and dies upon the stalk. Laughter is day and sobriety is night, and a smile is the twilight that hovers gently between both, and more bewitching than either.

Good wives are better conservators of the public peace and morality than policemen, prison statutes, and all the terrors of the law. Let a man be thus home anchored, and have an interest in a house and a lot, and except he is radically bad, he becomes a self-appointed guardian of the peace and of public morals.

One drop of ink will blacken a whole glass full of pure water. So will one evil communication make the whole world foul. Beware of those evil words. You might drop many, many drops of pure water into the tumbler, but it would have no perceptible influence. So it will take thousands of good precepts and good instructions to root out this one evil word.

Don't harp on past troubles.
 When we see a pale nervous woman in the midst of her friends preferring to entertain them with a list of the racking pains she has suffered to a saunter in God's free air and sunshine, we cannot wonder that the rose returns not to her blanched cheeks. Why is it that to some these memories are very much drunk?

They consume them the better agony is acted over and over again, the tears thrice shed, the place cherished where such a dreadful thing occurred, the scar fondly petted that tells of the almost fatal knife—Profanely never did any man the least good. No man is the richer, the happier, or wiser for it. It commends no one to any society. It is disgusting to the refined; abominable to the good; insulting to those with whom we associate; degrading to the mind; unprofitable, needless and injurious in society. Young man, don't be profane.

Lost wealth may be restored by industry; the wreck of health regained by temperance; forgotten knowledge restored by study; alienated friendship smoothed into forgetfulness; even forfeited reputation recovered by penitence; but who ever again looked upon his vanished hours, recalled his slightest years, stamped them with wisdom, or effaced from heaven's record the fearful blot of wasted time?

Women would be better and happier if men loved them better and were more true to them. If man would strive as hard to make home happy as they do to seek happiness elsewhere, the world would be better. Hours do come when men admit the power, the worth of women.
 Not in sunshine so much as in shade and storm. When engrossed with business and rolling on the sea of success we too often forget the ones without whom life would be a blank, and only fly to the havens of shelter —the love and gentle caresses of women—when the waves are high and to remain abroad is to perish.

Youth and age have too little sympathy with each other. If the young would remember that they may be old, and the old remember that they have been young, the world would be happier.

INFLUENCE OF HAPPY CHILDHOOD.
 The memory of early happiness is a treasure-house of sweet comforts.
 Its pure, simple, earnest joys become wells to draw from whenever we sit down in thirst and weariness by the dusty highway of life. Of this one good the world can never defraud us.
 The sunshine in those days reaches across our little stretch of life, and mingles its rays with those that beam from the heaven of our hope. The actual present of the adult life, and the materials which enter into it, are made up, more than we generally suppose, of remi-nescence. We ruminate like the ox. We lay up in the receptacles of memory abundance of undigested material that we recall and appropriate to our refreshment and nourishment; and this process of remi-nescence, of living over again, grows upon us as we grow into years, until at last it becomes all out. Exhausted power has no resource but to dwell upon its old play and its old achievements. How sad he who can never go back to his childhood without a shudder. Who can never recall a period when his life was filled with sweet and simple satisfaction. When a kind and loving

 Home Circle department from the columns of this paper.

SELF-DEPENDENCE.
 Many an unwise parent works hard, and lives sparingly all his life for the purpose of leaving enough to give his children a start in the world, as it is called. Setting a young man adrift with money left him by his relatives, is like tying a bladder under the arms of one who cannot swim; ten chances to one he will lose the bladder and go to the bottom. Teach him to swim and he will not need the bladder. Give your child a good education. See to it that his morals are pure, his mind cultivated, and his whole nature made subservient to the laws which govern man, and you will have given what will be of more value than the wealth of the Indies. You have given him a start which no misfortune can deprive him of. The earlier you teach him to depend upon his own resources and

GOOD READING.
 A taste for good reading has long been observed as one of the most effectual safeguards to young men against vice and crime. In the first place, it serves to give employment in those hours of leisure and freedom from work which would be likely otherwise to be worse than wasted.
 To the young man who has no taste for reading, the evening hours become loaded with temptation. It is tiresome to sit moping by the stove and he naturally drifts to the street or the card table. There he finds others like himself, with vacant hours to while away and thus grow up those habits and associations which soon eventuate in dissipation or lead to crime. We doubt if one instance in a thousand can be found of a young man's making shipwreck of hopes and character who was accustomed to spend his evening at home reading good books; and we say to any parent that a well stocked library and an abundant supply of newspapers and magazines, with the habit of reading on the part of your boy, is worth more to keep him out of mischief, and to make a man of him than any other single influence at your command.

Children in Pain.
 never cry so do children, who are suffering from hunger. Such is the cause of all babies who cry and are treated for sickness, when they really are suffering from hunger. This is caused from their food not being assimilated but devoured by worms. A few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge will cause them to cease crying and begin to thrive at once. Give it a trial. Sold by—Cowgill's Drug Store, Inc., and Helm & Wilson.

 I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys.
 Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidney, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidney as well, have their controlling or inside nerves.
 Waken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs.
 Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy ever claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complication use Dr. Shoop's Restorative.
